

Doctors Advancing Interpersonal Skills (DAIS)

In response to requests from GPs who have undertaken the Doctors' Interpersonal Skills Questionnaire (DISQ) or Improving Practice Questionnaire (IPQ), we have produced a self-directed medical education activity called "Doctors Advancing Interpersonal Skills" (DAIS). We believe that this activity will be relevant for future annual Appraisals and Revalidation.

DAIS contains 10 hours of self-directed educational activity which can be completed in your own time and at your own pace. The activity has been rated favourably by participating GPs and many have commented on its usefulness as part of Professional Development Plans (PDPs). Some Deaneries have approved the activity for 10 PGEA hours (Service Management category). We will be applying for national approval in the near future.

DAIS consists of a 40-page workbook and a 90-minute video containing snippets from recorded GP consultations with patients. The GP is required to read the workbook and watch examples of GP consultations provided in the video, and reflect on their interpersonal skills by recording their responses to exercises in the workbook.
